

er, NATO headquarters, Supreme Allied Command Transformation, Norfolk, Va. He won first place in the 2008 Defense Acquisition University Alumni Association Hirsch Research Paper competition.

Carolyn Miller Huresky (BBA '01) of Crested Butte, Colo., launched a line of upscale fitness and sports accessories named "Qteaze." The products are available at www.qteaze.net.

Cam Wilbur (BBA '01) of Acworth was selected to serve a three-year term on the Terry College of Business Young Alumni Board. He is currently executive vice president and financial advisor at Wisser Wealth Management, Inc. Jeremy Faughtenberry (BBA '04) of Lilburn founded Mercury Investments LLC. Eric Knox (BBA '04) of Nashville, Tenn., joined the law offices of Bass, Berry & Sims. Ross Yasin (BBA '04, BS '04) of Perry is an ERP deployment specialist with Pro-Build in Denver, Colo. He is working on a project designed to integrate Pro-Build's 550 locations into one uniform system.

2005-09

Christopher Arnold (BBA '05) of Macon was named an associate at the law office of Jones, Cork and Miller LLP. Steven Voynich (MAcc '05) of Columbus was featured in an article in the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer.

Adam Cohen (BBA '06) of Atlanta married Julie Dane-Kellogg (BBA '06, MAcc '07). Adam is a senior management consultant at Tenon Consulting Solutions of Alpharetta. Julie has recently earned her CPA and is a tax associate at Habif, Arogeti & Wynne, LLP of Atlanta.

Brant Barrow (BBA '08, MAcc '09) of Atlanta received his Masters of Accountancy degree from the Terry College upon his completion of the program at the University of Bocconi, in Milan, Italy. After interning at KPMG International Accounting Firm, he served as a KPMG Ambassador for recruiting at UGA. He now joins KPMG as an auditor in the Atlanta office. Brant is currently serving a three-year term as a member of the UGA Terry College of Business Young Alumni Board. Rachel Elliott (MBA '08) of Atlanta is the operations director for Professional MBA Programs in the Terry College of Business. Madeline Jane Mitchell (BBA '09) of Augusta was accepted into the UGA Law School. Brent Roland (BBA '09) of Athens joined Trinity Accounting Group as a staff accountant. <#>

Profile

(from left) Bailey and Justiss are proof positive that you better pay close attention to the guy flipping burgers next to you; years later, he may be flipping companies with you.

Bolton Brothers

By Chris Starrs (ABJ '82)

For the last 12 years, Bob Bailey (BBA '85) and Ted Justiss (BBA '84) have been routinely turning startups into multi-million-dollar enterprises in the medical and technological staffing fields, then selling them for a healthy profit. And it all started at the Bolton Dining Hall.

"Ted and I worked in Bolton from the time we showed up on campus," says Bailey, a New Jersey native who followed his older brother to Athens and earned a finance degree from Terry. "Ted and I got to know each other while cooking eggs and flipping burgers."

"We didn't talk about business, we were just friends enjoying college," says Justiss, an Atlanta native whose degree is in accounting.

Bailey and Justiss' latest entrepreneurial endeavor brings all of their educational and real-world experiences together under the umbrella of W3 LLC, an Alpharetta-based holding company that provides capital and expertise to a pair of new businesses — Locum Leaders, which matches doctors and other health-care providers with facilities for short-term assignments, and RunE2E, which provides customer relationship management software solutions for small and mid-size businesses.

Bailey has begun to alter his vision to some degree. Instead of looking to develop new businesses, he wants to develop new business leaders — although neither he nor Justiss are opposed to future wheeling and dealing. "I'm in the mode now where the intent of W3 is to teach others how to start and lead a business," says Bailey. "I'm not the CEO of either of the businesses that we've got under the W3 umbrella. The challenge for Ted and me is to teach others how to do what he and I have already done — which is basically start something from nothing, and grow the heck out of it.

"Bob and I enjoy building businesses and running them," adds Justiss. "What's different this time is that we've identified people to run both of our businesses. We have CEOs in both businesses and we actively support those with our strengths so they can run themselves." <#>